

A photograph of a snowy landscape with a city skyline in the background. The foreground is covered in snow and dry, brown grass. In the background, several tall buildings are visible under a hazy sky.

...december 16, 1994...

i am a face you do not know whispering the winds in snow – echoing a hollow space
that hides inside your chimney place –

you will not see me entering the cracks along your window frame –
you will not me gathering among the shadows of your room –

like a guest you almost know i'll sit beside you in the cold until the outside fall of white smothers and obliterates.

©pamela swanson
www.poetpam.com