

A silver squirrel is the central focus of the image, positioned in the lower-left quadrant. It is facing right, looking towards the right edge of the frame. The squirrel has a greyish-brown body with a lighter, almost white, patch on its chest and a bushy tail. The background is a dense thicket of green leaves and brown, fallen leaves, suggesting a forest floor. The lighting is bright, creating strong highlights and shadows. The text is overlaid on the right side of the image, within a white, semi-transparent rectangular area.

...march 21, 2011...

iridescent blue jay -
silver squirrel dance - golden finches flying
a solstice morning frost -

flashes of forever
emblazoned into minds teaching us - unfailingly - we are the world's eyes.

pamela swanson
www.poetpam.com