

...july 18, 2014...

epiphany – eclipse and epsilon –
we learn – forget and learn anew again –

awake and not awake to find ourselves staring at a phosphorescent moon – turquoise skies melt into indigo humming earth songs deep into our bones till we are wrapped inside a giant-ness that links us heart and soul to everything – we are the earth and all that on it breathes remembering each child as ourselves born and born and born and born again growing into innumerable names every time remembering to forget the multiplicity our cells contain –

epiphany – eclipse and epsilon
we learn – forget and learn anew again.

pamela swanson
www.poetpam.com

