

A photograph of two red darter dragonflies in flight over a pond. The dragonflies are bright red with black markings on their abdomens and thoraxes. They are positioned in the upper half of the frame, with one slightly higher and further to the left than the other. The background consists of dark water and a dense thicket of dry, yellowish-brown reeds and grasses that create a complex, textured pattern. The lighting is bright, suggesting a sunny day, and the overall scene is captured in a slightly blurred, dynamic style.

...june 26, 2016...

red darter dragonflies are skipping liquid sunshine on the pond united in a curious flight of acrobatic leaps and spins – they spiral whirlpools of air head to tail in edgy flight between the water reeds and leaves like neon twigs of almost light – up and down and back and forth rippling water surfaces while in the depths of yet to be they seed their future progeny.

©pamela swanson
www.poetpam.com