

...july 27, 2020...

come along my little one child self of once-upon traipsing through my shadow self to giggle at what i've become –

come along my little one
the moon is visiting the sun and stars are dancing yellow sand to wash the waves away – let's join forces to explore curious driftwood fortresses with feather flags and footprint moats winding down towards the shore –

come along my little one teach me how to see again let child eyes become my own until we are one again.

©pamela swanson
www.poetpam.com