

A photograph of two Canada geese swimming in a body of water. The geese have brown and black feathers. One goose in the foreground is splashing water, creating a white spray. The other goose is behind it, also splashing. The water is dark with ripples.

...october 30, 2020...

sometimes i wish that i could be the person that you think i am echoing those thoughts that you pretend you are not thinking –

other times you realize the person that i truly am has always been the inner me despite the games we played –

trying to pretend that you are anything like me –
and trying to pretend that i am anything like you

does justice to nobody – so now – let's just agree that you are magical as you and i am magical as me.